A guide to introducing industrial influences into the home

Over the past few years, as old warehouses and trade buildings have been renovated and developed, industrial style has been growing more prevalent in the world of interior design.

From exposed concrete floors and brickwork to metal lighting fixtures, there are many ways to introduce this style into your home without having to make any drastic changes.

To celebrate this trend, online retailer Furniture Choice has launched a brand new range of products, from stylish chairs to stand out sofas.

Neutral wall and floor coverings in colours such as slate grey and eggshell white will make the perfect backdrop.

Finally, for the finishing touch, choose metallic lighting and rust coloured fabrics to create a stylish setting, perfect for entertaining guests.

In the living room, a leather sofa with chrome legs gives an understated nod to industrial style. Using textured soft furnishings and canvas' with metallic tones creates a comfortable, yet modern family environment.
