Stranger things Spring Summer 2018

There and back again - in all its nostalgia-tinged glory, Stranger Things heralded a return to the style and neon tints of the 80s.

Rebecca Snowden, Interior Style Advisor at Furniture Choice discusses how this trend has come full circle: "The core elements of the 80s have really made a comeback in pop culture, with bold, primary colours in fashion, film, and of course, interiors. We paid homage to the Stranger Things universe by incorporating cool elements and design tips to a modern-day home.

"The cult series' poster is a huge colour inspiration; dark blue walls lend an intimate, tranquil feeling to a space, especially the living room, and then to balance out the cool tones, we went with a bold, red sofa for an eye-catching touch."

"We've also added Easter Eggs that cleverly double as fun decorative pieces. This includes key elements like classic movie posters alongside references that'll get any Stranger Things fan excited, like an old camera, a bright yellow telephone and a string of fairy lights for a hint of whimsy (also doubling up as a direct line to the Upside Down - you never know).

"Though we were inspired by the show, we didn't want to copy the 80s aesthetic wholesale, we balanced out the entire look with a few contemporary elements, such as a printed monochrome rug to tie the space together. The trick to capturing this look is to include a healthy mix of modern and retro styles while invoking a stylish feel of the series."
