Nordic Blush Autumn Winter

Add a Nordic twist to the home this season with the help of an earthy blush palette and clean, neutral lines synonymous with Scandinavian design.

For the living room, Rebecca Snowden, Interior Style Advisor at Furniture Choice advises to choose a cosy terracotta hue to warm up the space with its rich, dusky undertone. "A black leather sofa lays the groundwork to contrast against other earthy shades," she says. "Keep the space cosy but streamlined by accessorising thoughtfully. Stylishly placed abstract paintings, velvet cushions and vases in varying shades of burgundy and terracotta display all the hallmarks of careful curation."

Take the colour palette down a few notches in the bedroom with soft blush tones on the walls. Channel the cosy Danish concept of Hygge by focusing on gentle, calming textures such as an upholstered quilted bed layered with plenty of pillows, cushions and throws. "When done right, the warm blush tones bring the look together and establishes a soothing, relaxing atmosphere," Rebecca comments. "Modern and sophisticated accents such as pendant lamps subtly enhance the bedroom and are a discreet way to showcase lighting while letting you bask in the room's lovely glow."

Opt for a toned down version of orange like canyon clay in the dining room as this colour invites feelings of warmth and enthusiasm to the heart of the home. "Colour block the walls with a white dining set for a bright and airy feel," Rebecca advises. "This creates a fresh effect in the dining room which is still calming but adds a dramatic hint. A matching pendant lamp and elegant pottery in clay tones also enhances the comforting vibe of the room thanks to their textured, matte effect when placed above the white dining set."
