Staying Neutral Autumn Winter

Subdued yet stylish, a monochrome palette of neutrals is calming, timeless and easy to achieve. Rebecca Snowden, Interior Style Advisor at FurnitureChoice.co.uk, shares 4 ideas on styling monochrome spaces in the home.

A grey living room is chic and perennial, but the cool colour theme runs the risk of being cold or uninviting. Add a pop of black and white to offer visual contrast and drama, and bring the rest of the room to life. "Introduce the colours by highlighting specific parts of the room, whether with a feature wall, art or even a plant stand," advises Rebecca.

Light neutrals are great for a home office as they open up a room for an airy and spacious feel. Maintain a fresh and light ambience by choosing furniture with less visual weight like a glass table or those with slender silhouettes. Include warmth-inducing materials like plants for a pop of colour and liveliness, or candles for a touch of hygge.

Avoid a grey dining room from feeling flat by using multiple shades of grey across different mediums. This includes furniture, decorative accessories and design features like an elegant half wall panelling. "Also play with textures, like pairing a smooth marble table with supple leather chairs, and having a large rug for cosiness," advises Rebecca.

A neutral palette with warm undertones is comfortable and cosy, perfect for creating a calm bedroom. "It's all about layering soft textures and tones in the bedroom, from a fabric bed to a chunky wool knit in a soft oatmeal hue," says Rebecca. "As for finishing touches, choose natural materials like wood, clay or rattan to add depth to a monochrome bedroom," she advises.
