Fresh, lively and helpful with relieving stress, the colour green is set to make waves in 2020. Rebecca Snowden, Interior Style Advisor at FurnitureChoice.co.uk, shares 4 ways to bring this colour into the home.

A lush green interior helps soothe tired eyes after a long day of working with screens. Easily create your own calm space by painting the walls green. "Use dark wood furniture and metallic accessories in a moss green dining room for a luxe and edgy setting," suggests Rebecca. "And for the bedroom, a pretty sage green wall creates a calm and airy atmosphere - the lighthearted, uplifting colour is harmonious and encourages relaxation."

On the pastel front, neo mint or mint green are set to be very fashionable in 2020. "Brighten up a small space or designate separate functional areas by way of colour blocked walls - coral is a lovely colour for pairing," says Rebecca. To balance the boldness of the walls, ground the room with neutral furniture like a white bed.

Make a statement for the new year and invest in a charming green velvet sofa. The sumptuous material enhances the richness of an emerald green and adds depth to a space. Style with brass finished planters or side tables for a lavish look, or matching dark wood furniture for something classic and cosy. "Bold yet versatile, a green velvet sofa is easy to dress for the seasons and set to become a talking point of the home," she says.

Finally, the most literal and natural way of adding green to the home is through leafy green plants. "Leafy, trailing plants inject a little wildness for an urban jungle feel while demure little succulents are adorable and easy to manage," says Rebecca. "Plants are quick additions to the home that make a big impact on our wellbeing - a big focus for 2020."
