Interior trends 2020

The year 2020 is set to be an exciting one with a diverse range of trends set to take centre stage. Rebecca Snowden, Interior Style Advisor at Furniture Choice, shares her top 5 interior trend predictions for the new year and how to style it at home.

First on the list is Japandi, a hybrid of Scandinavian and Japanese design. "Focusing on clean, uncluttered interiors, Japandi style is defined by functional yet sophisticated pieces," Rebecca explains. "In the living room, stick to the simple silhouette of a grey fabric sofa and a neutral palette which stays true to Japandi's minimalist philosophy."

Incorporating warm, earthy hues into the home for a bold, relaxing twist is set to be another big trend for 2020. "In the dining area, fire up the atmosphere with canyon clay on the walls," Rebecca says. "As a toned-down version of orange, it's a feel-good colour that easily contrasts with a black dining set to create a laidback look that's both eclectic and effortless."

Black marble will have its moment in the spotlight next season with a chic and dramatic finish. "Pair a black marble table in the dining room with curved black fabric dining chairs for an Art Deco-inspired touch," she says. "It displays all the hallmarks of luxury with its elegant high gloss finish but with a touch of modern edge."

Introduce sustainable practices into the home by using non-toxic paint on the walls. Free from volatile organic compounds (VOC), non-toxic paints removes harmful chemicals from the air. "Switching to non-toxic paint is a strong reminder for us to be mindful of our choices and the impact it has on our planet," Rebecca adds.

Bohemian-inspired decor gets an update next season by moving away from its usual explosion of colours and patterns. "In 2020, we will see a modern take on bohemian decor which creates a soothing atmosphere with soft neutrals and rattan," Rebecca says. "A neutral palette in the bedroom sets a solid foundation for mixing and matching textures. The fabric and rattan layers add depth while sticking to bohemian design's signature style."
