

— 3 grown up ways to decorate with pink

Traditionally a colour reserved for children's bedrooms, pink is now the go-to colour for a modern, sophisticated interior.

Our resident Interior Style Advisor Rebecca Snowden at Furniture And Choice (FurnitureChoice.co.uk) talks about 3 ways to give pink the grown up treatment.

1. Say it loud with rose pink and quiet luxury

Hot pink was all the rage with Barbiecore last year but right now we're loving earthy, rose pinks. Rose pink breathes fresh contemporary vibes on the walls and is the perfect combo with the other hot interior trend - wall panelling. What else can we say about this wall trend that's got over 100 million views on TikTok? Combining these two trends makes a room feel sophisticated and elegant with strong classic elements - just like a chic perfume advert. This stylish pairing also creates the perfect backdrop for colour drenching where everything in the room is the same colour creating a colourful monochrome space.

We're also big fans of how rose pink interiors and wall panelling fit right into the quiet luxury aesthetic. Choosing pink instead of the usual white, grey or cream shows you can be discreet and refined - what more with a pop of colour! It's all about highlighting the finer details of the room from the luxurious curves of the sofa to the classic lines of the wall panelling.

2. Stay neutral with plaster pink

Pink is usually a statement or accent colour but guess what? It works just as well when used as a neutral. Say goodbye to fuchsia or hot pink for this look and let plaster pink with its dusty grey undertone have its moment to shine (subtly of course!).

Styling plaster pink with other warm earthy neutral tones will make you feel like you're wrapped in a luxurious cocoon. There's always a sense of softness when we think of relaxation so go for colours like grey, charcoal, beige or brown. Colour blocking pink with earthy neutrals might just be the trick since it works as a wall colour or the colour pick for accessorising. Prioritise comfort when styling and think of what makes you feel refreshed.

3. Get groovy with pastel pink

It's not spring if there aren't pastels right? Pastel pink is our go-to pink tone for a playful yet smart backdrop in the living room. Bringing a velvet green sofa into the mix will also add to the fresh spring vibes. On opposite ends of the colour wheel, pink and green are such a timeless combo and one of our favourite pairs to contrast. Green sofas are all the rage right now with nearly 15 k monthly searches on Google - you know you've made the right choice!

Besides the chic contrast, pairing pink and green together also allows you to tap into the retro revival trend. We're talking curves, colour and texture to refresh your interior. Painting the relaxing curves of ribbed panels will soften your living room while highlighting the curves and eclectic shapes throughout the room.
