

3 Ways to Update Nordic Décor with Blush Tones

Inject colour into Scandinavian design with the arrival of Nordic Blush, a style which fuses form and function with an earthy blush palette.

1. Add warmth to the living room with an earthy colour palette

Step away from light coloured walls and liven things up with an earthy colour palette in the living room. A cosy peach tone is a subtle approach to switching up wall colours, or take a bolder step with a warm terracotta hue to spice up the room with its rich, dusky undertone. Both these shades are restrained tints as a wall colour, making it easy to match with the classic shapes of Scandinavian design.

“A black leather or grey fabric sofa lays the groundwork as a neutral to contrast against other complementary earthy shades,” Rebecca says. “Keep the space cosy but streamlined by accessorising thoughtfully. Stylishly placed abstract paintings, velvet cushions and vases in varying shades of burgundy, terracotta and pink all display the hallmarks of careful curation.”

2. Embrace blush tones and neutrals in the bedroom

While energising terracotta works in the living room, take it down a few notches in the bedroom with soft blush tones on the walls. Channel the Danish concept of Hygge through warm, sensory elements that focus on gentle, calming textures. Simplicity and comfort are the key factors here, so choose fabrics which emphasise this such as an upholstered quilted bed to make the space feel light and inviting. Layer with lots of pillows, cushions and throws for that smooth, sensory touch.

“Use colour to bring different elements together with matching walls and accessories in varying blush shades,” Rebecca advises. “When done right, the warm blush tones bring the look together and establishes a soothing, relaxing atmosphere. Modern and sophisticated accents such as pendant lamps subtly enhance the bedroom and are a discreet way to showcase lighting while letting you bask in the room’s lovely glow.”

3. Keep it bright and airy in the dining room but with a warm twist

Warm earth tones also work in the dining room by bringing a cheerful boost to a communal space. Choose canyon clay – a subtle, toned down version of orange and a heartwarming colour to have in the dining area. Proven to stimulate conversation and appetites, it invites feelings of warmth and enthusiasm to the heart of the home.

“Colour block the walls with a white dining set for a bright and airy feel,” Rebecca suggests. “This generates a fresh effect in the dining room that is still tranquil but with a dramatic hint. A matching clay pendant lamp also enhances the comforting vibe of the room thanks to its textured, matte effect when placed above the white dining set.”

“And finally, add touches of nature with indoor plants which liven up the home and purify the air, especially during the cold winter months. Accessorise your greenery with elegant pottery in tones of beige and white for that refined, Scandi

chic finish.”
